TEACHER WORKSHOPS

SHIP-2-SHORE EDUCATION PROGRAM WORKSHOP

Saturday, March 24, 2012 🕒 1 - 5pm

Join staff from Algalita Marine Research Foundation to learn about plastic pollution in the world's oceans. This workshop will provide background information for educators to get their students involved in following an upcoming research voyage through the western Pacific to Japan to study plastic pollution in the wake of the 2011 tsunami. Find out how your classroom can interact online with our research team while they are at sea.

Participants will explore the issue of marine plastic pollution through a combination of hands-on classroom activities, computer lab activities, and field research. During the workshop participants will also have the opportunity to attend a lecture by Captain Charles Moore, author of "Plastic Ocean" and founder of the Algalita Marine Research Foundation.

LAUSD pre-approved professional development opportunities for salary point credit.
